PEANUT POLITICS.

Mr. Croker's vindictive attack on Senator Hill because Mr. Hi'l had dared to say that sooner or later there was bound to be a great fight in the American political life against the boss who runs the party solely on the principle of the cohesive power of public plunder has served to open the eyes of a great number of Mr. Croker's admirers who seeing his natural forces are tempted to overlook the means by which he acquired the ascendency and the ends for which he uses it.

A democratic government which rests on the will of the majority of the people is from the very nature of its constitu tion obliged to be divided into parties, and parties inevitably choose leaders who have, in America at least, an extraordinary degree of power with a no less extraordinary lack of responsibility.

Can any one believe for an instant that a majority of the good Republicans of New York State and city are in sympathy with the methods of Thomas C. Platt, or that there are not numberless good Republicans in Pennsylvania who abhor the iniquitous and debauching methods of Matthew Stanley Quay, and is it to be believed for an instant that Grover Cleveland, William C. Whitney, Charles S. Fairchild, Abram S. Hewitt or David B. Hill sympathizes with the brigandish ways of Tammany Hall, simply because it masquerades under the name of Democracy Yet the interest in point in all this discussion about bosses is the fact that the boss is in no way responsible to the people at large. He is not elected into office, nor can he be voted out. He holds his position because he is able to divide offices, patronage and money among his followers The offices and the patronage have to be divided, and giving them to one's followers is not in itself and of itself a wicked thing, but it is infamous and to the last degree reprehensible for a man who yields the powers that Mr. Croker undoubtedly possesses to use it solely for the advancement of himself and his own nefarious

Tammany Hall has been in charge of New York City for many years, and New York City has been systematically plun dered, and with the growing light upon this subject Senator Hill was perfectly perrect in saying that the citizens, not only in New York, but of other great cities and States, were going to demand that the boss exercise his power for the good of the people, or they would form new rings with new bosses on higher lines and smash the old ones.

It was the truth of this statement and the sense of his own past misdeeds that drove Mr. Croker to call Hill a "peanut politician," a "sneak" and a "political trickster." The people of America have sound judgment. Upon that judgment and that honesty we rely. Upon that judgment and upon their high motives Democracy is built and rests and believing as we do in the spirit and principle of Democracy we cannoy doubt but that the people will rise in their might some day and will make the name of the boss who abuses his power a byword and a hiss, John Y. McKane will not be forever the only robber under the guise of leadership who has received the reward of his misdeeds, and if Mr. Croker wishes to vanquish Mr. Hill he will have to take some more powerful issue than the record that Mr. Croker has made in New York as opposed to the statements made by Mr. Hill of the record that the citizens of this republic wish.

RICHMOND'S INDUSTRIES

The Chicago Times-Herald, in discuss ing the census returns and making comparlsons between the cities of the South says that Richmond is a tobacco centre. "but lacks the energy necessary for the development of diversified industries."

It is strange that a reputable newspaper should in ignorance make so reckless a statement concerning a flourishing Southern city. Had the Times-Herald made a business, so injurious and so untruthful, it would have made itself liable to an action for damages. Richmond is, indeed, a tobacco centre, and it has great tobacco interests, but that it has not "developed diversified industries" is a statement that none but an ignoramus or wilful falsifier could have made. In 1890 there were in the city of Richmond 725 manufacturing industries; at present the number of industries is 1,215, and these new industries are practically all outside of the tobacco business. We have one of the largest plants in the country for the building of locomotives, and Richmond locomotives have within ten years attained a world-wide reputation. Within ten years Richmond has established the shipbuilding industry, and now has a large and flourishing ship yard. Within ten years Richmond has become headquarters for the largest fertilizer manufacturing concerns in the South, and Richmond men are now building an extensive dam to develop the water power of the James and convert it into electricity.

All this, to say nothing of hundreds of other industries, great and small, which give employment, all told, to 22,000 people. Why the census returns make such a poor showing for Richmond in the matter of population, we do not understand. It is a puzzle to everybody who lives here, and we cannot help thinking the figures are erroneous. But that Richmond has made giant strides in industry within the past several years, there is abundant evidence on every hand.

THE NEGRO AS A FARMER. The North Texas Colored Fair and Cotton Exposition is now being held in Dallas, the object of which is to excite in the negro a greater interest in the work of producing and manufacturing cotton. Whether or not colored people can successfully manufacture cotton is a problem that has not been solved, but that they can successfully produce the raw material is a fact that has been abundantly demonstrated. Agriculture is the most inviting tield of employment to the black man. If he owns a farm and tills the soil industriously he is sure to make a comfortable support, and the color of his skin will not be prejudicial to his advancement. Mother Earth is no respecter of persons, and she will yield her increase to the man who toils earnestly and intelligently without discrimination against any because of race, color or previous condition of servitude. In the field of agriculture the black does not come into competition with the white man as in other departments of industry, and there is never a clash of interests between white farmers and black farmers.

Many colored men have taken to farming, and in Virginia some of the best and most successful farmers are men of that race. Colore, farmers come to Richmond daily, in season, bringing vegetables, butter, eggs, fowls and fruits, and no white resident eve thinks of turning such a farmer away because he is black. Whenever they conduct themselves properly they enjoy the respect and good will of their neighbors, and so far as these are concerned the race problem has been solved.

Some time ago we had an interesting con versation on this subject with a prominent citizen of Louisa county. He was a slaveowner in days past; he has always been a staunch Democrat, and he is now one o the largest land-owners in the county. He said that there were many colored men in his county who owned farms, were industrious and respectable, and, altogether, good citizens. "And I for one," he went on "am opposed to depriving these men of the right to vote. They have property interests, they pay taxes and they ought to have a voice in government. I cannot think it right to disfranchise these respectable farmers simply because they are black, and give the ballot to a worthless tramp, simply because he is white."

Our friend from Louisa is by no means alone in the opinion that he holds. The black man who accumulates property and conducts himself as a good citizen is en titled to vote, and all fair-minded white men think so. The colored farmers of Louisa have made an impression, and colored men all over the South will be wise to imitate their example. The country negro is a farmer by heredity, if not by nature It is the one industry that he best understands, it is the industry that suits him and it is industry that holds out to him the greatest inducements.

MR, BRYAN CAN SETTLE IT.

As we pointed out yesterday, Hon. Carl Schurz has undertaken the task of showing his German fellow-citizens that they ought to vote for Mr. Bryan in the coming Presidential election. In the pursuit of his undertaking he has addressed an "open" letter to Mr. Gage, the Secretary of the Treasury, criticising Gage's published statement that Mr. Bryan could, if elected, by the exercise of considerable "perverse ingenuity," put the Government upon a silver basis, ruin its credit and bring incalculable disaster upon the business interests of the country. The substance of Mr. Schurz's argument was that even if Bryan were elected, it would be from November to March before he could take his seat and in that time the present Congress, Republican in both branches, would hold a session in which it could add all such Legislation to existing Legislation that is necessary for making it impossible for Mr. Bryan to hurt the gold standard or the business interests of the country.

Mr. Gage has replied to this with an equally "open" letter and he has replied to it most effectively. He makes the obvious suggestion that the coming session of the Republican Congress will expire by operation of law March 4, 1901, and in that connection he makes the following remarks:

It is a familiar fact, and one altogether too much in evidence, that an administra-tive officer, filled with hatred and con-tempt of a particular law can, by perverse ingenuity, practically nullify its opera-tions. You point out in your letter that if the course indicated by me in the inter-view referred to should be contemplated by Mr. Bryan, the Republican Congress which meets in December next, could in advance restrain him by new and more effective mandatory provisions. The pro-position that in case of Mr. Bryan's election the present Congress can tie his hands so that he cannot give effect to his exed intention appears to me to pressed intention appears to me to be fallacious. It would require new legislation by a party whose policy would have been rejected by the people through their last expression at the polis. Further than this, the next session will expire by operation of law on the 4th of March, 1901. The free silver minority would be justified by their constituents in using all the resources islation such as you suggest would be probably impossible. Can any one doubt Mr. Bryan would urge action by his friends in Congress to prevent the further strenghtening of the policy which be denounces as criminal? Your remarks upon this point seem to indicate that you rely upon the exercise of the power already conferred upon the Republican party to prevent the country from experiencing disasters, which Mr. Bryan will, if he can, bring upon us. May I not suggest that the way to secure safety is not to take ower from those upon whom you rely or protection and confer it upon those whose action you may have good cause to dread?

Mr. Gage then proceeds to point out to Mr. Schurz the temper in which Mr. Bryan would come to the administration of affairs and he quotes from the speech Mr. Bryan made at Knoxville, Tennessee, on September 16, 1896, as follows: is any one who believed that the gold standard is a good thing, or that it must be maintained, I warn tilm not to cast his vote for me because I promise him that it will not be maintained in this country longer than I am able to get rid of it" Mr Gage suggesting that he believes Mr. Bryan, of course, entertains the same views now that he did then, and adding that in his own opinion Mr. Bryan's threatened blow to the gold standard would be the most terrible calamity that the country could suffer, brings the "to-quo-que" argument to bear on Mr. Schurz with great effect. He says that in 1896 Mr. Schurz made a speech in which he said:

"The mere apprehension of a possibility of Mr. Bryan's election and of the consequent placing of our country upon the silver basis has already caused untold milof our securities to be thrown upon the market. Scores of business orders are already recalled, a large number of manufacturing establishments have already stopped or restricted their operations, enterprise is already discouraged, and nearly paralyzed. And if these are the effects of a mere apprehension of a possibility, what would be the effect of the event itself? There is scarcely an imaginable itself? There is scarcely an imaginable limit to the destruction certain to be wrought by the business disturbance that Mr. Bryan's mere election would cause." This is an interesting correspondence, but there ought to be no occasion for it. Why should Mr. Schurz, and Secretary Gage be debating the question as to what Mr. Bryan would do, if he should be elected to the Presidency? Mr. Ervan is abundantly able to speak for himself and a word from him would settle the dispute and clear up the mystery in short order He can put a complete quietness upon Secretary Gage by simply saying that if elected he will carry out the spirit of the currency act of March 14, 1900, and maintain the gold standard

The Philadelphia Ledger, a Republican newspaper, noting that the Kepublicans lost about ten per cent. on this year's vote in Vermont, as compared with the vote for Governor in 1896, and that the Democrats gained seven per cent, says:
"Applying these revised percentages to the vote for President in 1896, and assuming a similar chance to take place throughout the Union, Bryan would be elected. Delaware would remain Republican, but Bryan would gain Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, Oregon and West Virginia."

This is mentioned as a warning to Republicans not to be too confident.

The Philadelphia Record says: "It seldom falls to the lot or comes into the mind of a rich man to reach into his heart and his pocket and make such a philanthropic and timely investment as that made by Mr. M. C. D. Borden, of Fall River, on Wednesday last. He bough the surplus of 500,000 pieces of cotton goods with which the mills were overstocked, and thus prevented a temporary stoppage f work, and prevented a proposed reduction of wages. This is the third time the Mr. Borden, himself a large manufactur This is the third time tha has boldly intervened between the Fal River operatives and calamity. It is doubtful whether it would be possible to find a means of doing larger handed good in a finer way.

This is refreshing. If all rich men wer as willing as Mr. Borden to employ their money for the public good, there would be no prejudice against wealth.

The News and Courier is not disposed to make no issue with the census enumer ators, because Charleston's population shows an increase of 1.55 per cent. It says that the lesson that the people of Charlesshould draw from this exhibition, is that they should and must make a better showing at the end of the next decade. To that end Charleston is already bestirring herself. She is going to have a great ex-position, which will arouse the home folks to action, and advertise Charleston's advantages abroad, and we have no be that Charleston will give a better account Charleston will give a better accoun of herself ten years hence.

AFTERMATH.

While prayer meeting was in progress in the Baptist Church of Flemington, N. J., last Wednesday night a woman discovered a snake wriggling down the aisle. Others saw it about the same time and there came near being a panic. One of the inembers, however, asked the leader to discontinue services temporarily, and to discontinue services temporarily, and the snake was dispatched. The prayer meeting was then resumed.

Senator Stewart has given out from National Republican headquarters a reply to the letter of Secretary Olney, in which he says that "Olney's friendship for and fidelity to Spain, which aggravated the people and brought on the war, is trans-ferred to Aguinaldo's friend, Mr. Bryan. The pretence that Olney's support of Bryan is something new is without foundation."

The Brooklyn Eagle says that it nas information from a reliable source of the engagement of General Stewart L. # THE FALL TRADE

An Increasing Demand for American Products.

The Bank Clearings, Though Broken by Holiday, Are Larger Than the Last Week in August. Large Business in Iron and Steel.

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, september 1.—Bradstreets
of to-morrow will say:
Trade developments this week have been mainly forestile and the in-

been mainly favorable and the improve-ment in general distributive business noted in the latter part of August has gathered in the latter part of August has gathered force in the first week of September. Leading features have been the widening fall trade reported at nearly all ports west, south and on the Pacific coast, some improvement in the jobbing demand at the provement in the jobbing demand at the east with southern buying a marked feature, rather better reports from the two great staple crops of the west and south, corn and cotton, improved export. Demand for American products, notably mand for American products, notably wheat, iron, steel and cotton, unvaringly good returns by the transportation interests of the country.

The corner appears to have been turned in bank clearings because the aggregate for the first week of September, though broken by holidays, is large; than the total for the preceding week. The industrial outlook has been improved by settrial cutlook has been improved by set-tlement of the tin plate, the general re-sumption of activity in the glass industry and expectation of a satisfactory settle-ment of the iron and steel wage scale.

The rise in the print cloths will avert wage reduction in New England.

The artracite coal outlook, however, is clouded by the prediction that 150,000 men will strike this week. The iron and steel situation continues cheerful in tone and a large business has been booked. No important gains in prices been booked. No important gains in prices are reported. On the contrary, Bessemer pig is lower on the week and little is doing in steel billets, the price of which is little above that of raw pig. Export demand is expanding, however, 10,000 tons of Southern pig being shipped this week from Birmingham and orders for twice as much more are reported booked. Iron producmore are reported booked. Iron produc showed a further heavy decline in August, but stocks against increas.

Wheat-including flour-shipments for the week aggregated 3,373,100 bushels against 3.248.373 last week, 4.253,905 in the corresponding week of 1899, 2,200,208 in 1898, 5,461,506 in 1897, and 3,799,141 bushels in

From July first to date this season wheat exports are 20,201,801 bushels against 37.476,243 last season, and 32,973,800 in 1895-99.
